Play Lives Here!

The London Children's Museum helps you experience the power of play through immersive exhibits, authentic materials, and hands-on programs.

Because when play comes first, connection, curiosity and confidence come next.

And curious, capable, confident children change the world.

BRANCHING OUT

A treehouse village in a forest full of dancing light and wildlife hideaways encourages visitors to climb, crawl, balance, and explore. Through multi-level treehouses and canopies, children discover big-body movement, natural exploration, and artifact surprises.

COMMUNITY ROOTS

This child-sized town allows visitors to take on roles of vital community members. Familiar community spaces such as a Neighbourhood Market, Restaurant, Rescue Headquarters, School, and Home present opportunities for imaginative and collaborative play.

DISCOVERY LAB

An interdisciplinary space designed for visitors to take part in STEAM-based creativity through building, making, crafting, designing, experimenting, and hacking. Visitors engage in self-directed making, collaborative projects, and staff-facilitated workshops.

STREAM

Taking inspiration from the Thames River (Antler River), STREAM is an exploration of water physics and life on the water. The river emerges from a rock bed high overhead, making its way down a waterfall, and over an aqueduct to fill a 21-meter-long water table.

FARM WORKS

A Farm and Factory tell the story of the region's manufacturing, industrial, and agricultural history, helping visitors make connections about how food is produced, processed, and sold.

UNEARTHED

Visitors explore the world of dinosaurs by uncovering bones, rocks, and minerals before taking objects into the field lab for further research and investigation. Children discover an immense cave system where they practice spelunking and discover cave ecosystems.

ABOVE & BEYOND

From Earth to outer space and back again, children let their curiosity soar to the outer reaches of the universe in this exhibit. Visitors investigate the principles of astronomy, become astronauts, and blast off to the International Space Station. A digital planetarium invites children to explore the galaxy, fostering curiosity about stars, planets, and constellations.

THE ANNEX

As a flexible, fresh, open space, The Annex functions as an event venue and home for temporary exhibits. The Annex acts as a community gathering spot where the culture, arts, and heritage of London and the surrounding area can be celebrated.
